Six reels of excellent pictures will be shown. The price of admission is 10 cents.

The manager of the Pavilion had his troubles yesterday. As a special feature of the day, he had engaged a team of Indian performers, who had been highly recommended. They were to come from Plattsburg and supposed they could get a boat Thursday morning from that city to Burlington and then by rail to Barre. Bright and early they went to the dock and on arriving they were informed that the boat left about 4 o'clock in the afternoon on Thursdays and were also informed that by taking the boat they would arrive in Barre about 9 o'clock last night. The Indians realized that 9 p. m. was rather a late hour to arrive for a matinee and at once took the warpath for the railroad depot. At that spot the ticket agent informed them that the railroad company would gladly get them to Barre at 9 p. m., but not any earlier. All this happened bright and early in the morning. The genial manager of the Pavilion got up early yesterday morning and, with a happy smile on his face, was going about his daily labors when suddenly and without any previous warning, a hiring of the telegraph company appeared, a telegram changed hands, the happy smile vanished and a short, portly individual made a record breaking sprint to the nearest long-distance phone and by quick work a trio of musical artists were secured to take the place of the Indians. After the first show at night, the happy smile came back into its usual abiding place. Both acts were fine and joy reigned supreme.

"Grey Wolves."

The real grey wolves of this picture were, in one sense, not the tame animals used in the forest scene, but the speculators in the Chicago wheat pit. Though not a life portrayal, it's a story of business life. Both hero and villain are what might be called giants of the wheat pit (stock market). In the early scenes they are rivals in love. The villain is a bad loser and tries to ruin the hero by "bearing" on the wheat market. They and their adherents come together on the floor of the pit and the scene makes a good picture of the rush and pandemonium of that place at such a time, with its excited faces, its hands waved in the air, its pushing and struggling for place. The hero's health breaks under the stress of the encounter and he is almost ruined financially. The doctor sends him to the woods, where he is pictured as having a different kind of struggle for his life, this time with real wolves. It's at Dreamland.

GOVERNMENT REGULATION FOR OUR GRANITE MANUFACTURING PLANTS

Should the Ventilating System of Our Granite Manufacturing Plants Become Subject to Government Regulation?

This question often presents itself in the course of conversation among granite manufacturers, and the problem is far from being solved. Meanwhile good men are gradually becoming disabled and passing to the great beyond. The manufacturers are great and anxious to procure better ventilating systems that will become practical. They know only too well the danger that a man encounters when he works in a shed that is destitute of any method or means of ventilation and they manfully meet the situation and spend thousands and thousands of dollars to protect their employees. Everybody with the right public spirit is on the lookout for the advancement of mechanical and human agencies for the health, happiness and comfort of the workman. The Barre Drug company has prepared a mixture of tannin and wild cherry in the form of a syrup, for the relief of bronchial and lung affections and it's an ideal remedy for coughs and colds. It is conveniently put up in bottles that cost 25 and 40 cents and, further, every bottle is guaranteed to give entire satisfaction or you can get your money back. This proposition should appear to you who have a hacking cough. "It's good, every drop." Keep in mind the store, corner of Main and Merchant streets, Depot Square drug store.
